Coronavirus
COVID-19

WHO GUIDELINES

- Our PPE meet or exceed the technical specifications outlined by the World Health Organization (WHO) to keep Canadians safe. We follow the WHO's guidance on quality, performance characteristics and related standards for personal protective equipment (PPE) to be used for COVID-19.
- This includes WHO Priority Medical Devices, specifically: surgical masks, non-surgical masks, gloves, goggles, face shields, gowns and N95 masks and other equipment.

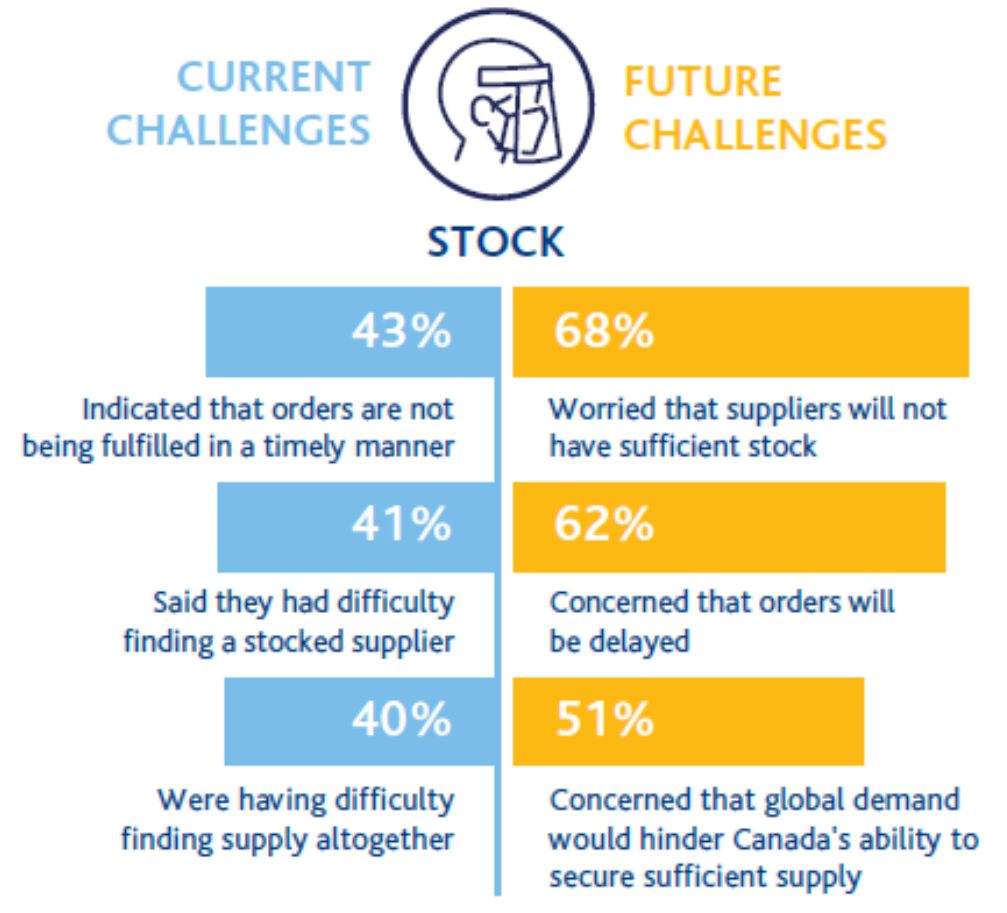

CANADIAN PHYSICIANS NEED PPE

We can alleviate these healthcare concerns

- A recent survey of Canadian Medical Association (CMA) members showed doctors are worried about PPE supply in Canada now and in the foreseeable future.
- "We continue to see outbreaks throughout the country and with resurgences of COVID-19 now before us, it's imperative that governments ensure our front-line workers are protected, not only in hospital settings but also in community practice settings, as they form our first line of defence against this pandemic" CMA President Dr. Ann Collins.

ALL CANADIAN HEALTH PROFESSIONALS NEED PPE

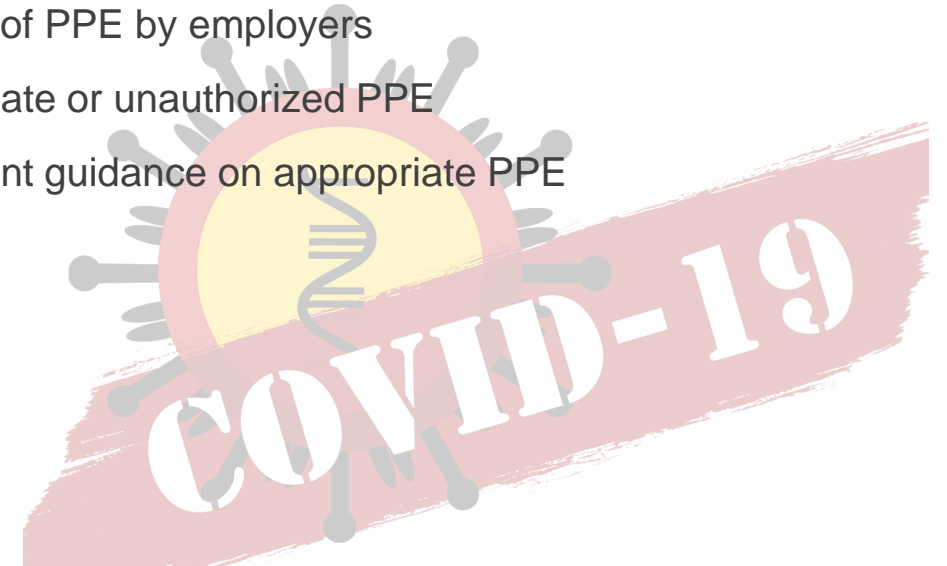

We support frontline professionals

According to the Canadian Nurses Association:

- “The COVID-19 pandemic has generated many challenging ethical dilemmas for nurses and health-care providers, including decisions around surge capacity, triaging of care and allocation of limited resources (i.e., beds, ventilators, staff). Of particular concern is the potential and actual shortages of appropriate PPE for health-care providers, which can compromise the safety of patients and staff alike “ (CNA’s key messages on PPE, 2020)

The media has reported cases of the following:

- Shortages or anticipated shortages of PPE
- Rationing of PPE by employers
- Inappropriate or unauthorized PPE
- Inconsistent guidance on appropriate PPE

PROBLEM

“Canada's public health authority says around 1 million KN95 respirators acquired from China have failed to meet federal Covid-19 standards for use by front-line health professionals. “

SOLUTION

We avoid this by having an experienced manufacturer who can meet the North American and WHO standards for PPE, thus saving our customers money and ensuring quality efficient protection.

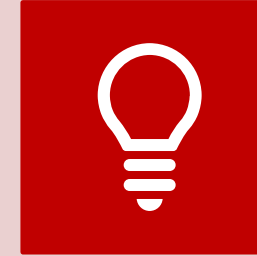

PROBLEMS AND SOLUTIONS

PROBLEM

“Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said two airplanes sent to China to pick up shipments of badly needed medical products were forced to return to Canada empty. Trudeau cited transportation delays on the ground and strict rules that limited how long planes were permitted to wait at Shanghai's airport, a statement the Chinese government has disputed.”

SOLUTION

Our manufacturer is strategically located near Guangzhou thus we have a better chance of getting our products boarded on time as the airport is less busy than Shanghai. We also have access to Shanghai port and airport. Our manufacturer will ensure all phases are done precisely until the ordered products are boarded.

PROBLEM

“Canada needs a national plan to make PPE readily available to businesses, workers and Canadian consumers that includes domestic and international sourcing. By working together, business and governments can move quickly to make this happen, as we have already seen throughout this crisis. “

SOLUTION

We are currently facing shortages of PPE for front line workers: the shortage will only get worse because of the plans of reopening businesses and our economy. Conversations around when and how to safely re-open the economy have identified a critical roadblock to getting our businesses up and running again: PPE for workers. We can help to meet this demand and provide PPE for all.

PROBLEM

“Models from the Canadian Institute for Health Information project the impact of the COVID-19 in Newfoundland and Labrador and suggest cases could continue to peak and ICU bed capacity could be exceeded, even if current preventive measures remain in place. Health Minister John Haggie said the province is looking into contingency plans to prepare for a predicted shortfall in ICU beds.”

SOLUTION

Time is of the essence. The global battle to secure PPE supplies remain tight, we can't guarantee that our manufacturer will have the time to wait for our orders. We cannot control COVID-19 nor the PPE demand. One thing that RedHawk can do is to enable the Provinces of Canada and Canadian organizations to secure delivery of PPE supplies for all Canadians right now.
